A PERPENDICULAR DENIAL. Secretary Ballinger's denial of the charges against him is of a character to challenge from those who made them the proof of his offences. He avers that "to say that I ever have advised, sided, or lent support to any effort to perpetrate a fraud upon the government, is not only false, but is tion will be required to make divorce intentionally so, if made by anyone less popular. into the facts."

This requires that the men who have declared that the secretary's as-

ASTONISHING FIGURES.

The advocate of any cause who does not know that misrepresentation does not pay is not sufficiently well in-formed to take the platform. A Penn-sylvania woman with her budget of this is what he said about them: "Mrs. Blank declared that 580,000 boys in the United States became addicted to alcoholism during 1968. Now, the annual births of male children in this country are approximately 1,100,000. of whom over 200,000 die before they reach the age of 14. Hence her statement is that nearly two-thirds of the eys in the United States become vic-Cims of strong drink. She also declared that in the same year 200,000 babies were smothered by drunken mothers. But the census shows that the total deaths of this kind in one year were 1.928, and these accidents could not all be attributed to intoxica-She stated that in one year 1,000,000 deaths were caused by drunken cab drivers and chauffeurs. In the last census year the total deaths from all causes were under 1,100,000, and from all accidents 57,513, and of these the largest number of deaths were caused by railway accidents. Another declaration was that intoxicating liquor made $5,000 insane in one year, but the total insane population of the United States December 21, 1906, was only 150,151. Nor can her allegation be correct that 100,000 men and women went to prison in one year as the result of strong drink, since the total prison population of the United States was less than that figure."

In view of her exaggerations it cannot be said that she achieved much for the cause, for not realizing the value of accuracy she queered the cause she represented.

LESSONS IN COURTESY.

This is a novel enterprise which the Philadelphia Times has entered upon to attract attention to itself and to people of the "City of Brotherly Love" need a little education in the matter of courtesy to women upon the street cars, so The Times sends out a Courtesy Cashier who gives a dollar to every male passenger who has the fearful to contemplate-for him. courtesy to give a woman a seat. "He saw nineteen men arise and give their seats to women. To each of these courteous ones the Courtesy Cashier immediately presented an order upon The Evening Times for $1. "An analysis of the total of nineteen is especially interesting. Seven seals were given to young and pretty women. One seat went to a young woman not at all comely. Four seats were given to women with packages. One was given to a woman with a given to aged women. "When it is considered that of the 260 women who were standing in the twenty-eight cars visited by the Courtesy Cashier probably fifty stood near the seats of other women and not near seated men, the showing is not at all bad-for a beginning."-This will improve the manners of the sitters, doubtless, for who cannot afford to be polite for a dollar a time; and if the dollar makes a lasting impression who shall say that the money has not been well spent?

The Reading railway has ordered two and a half million dollars' worth of freight cars, which shows it has confidence in the future of the carrying business.

THE DIVORCE HABIT.

The divorce habit is disgracefully common and shows no sign of being on the decrease. A record of 9,937 divorces for 1867 against 72,062 in 1908 leaves no doubt that marriage is getting to be less and less serious and more and more experimental. The government statistical reports show

The government experts calculate that the divorce rate has not yet reached its maximum. They calculate that not fewer than one marriage in every sixteen will be dissolved by divorce and that the ratio may be even more than that.

It is shown by these statistics that there are far more divorces, both in number and proportion, granted in the United States than in any European country. In Japan alone do the figures exceed those of this country. The most common cause of divorce is desertion, and this could be checked by the passage of drastic laws making desertion perilous instead of easy. Uniform and more stringent legisla-

How to Honor Washington. It is greatly to be feared that the desire to be president of something or other has more to do with this latest movement to build George Washington another monument than any feeling that he really needs another. George has about monuments enough: George has about monuments enough; that noble structure towering above Washington settled him for long so far as buildings of stone and brick and casts of bronze need go. Rapid Transit.

In response to a growing demand in his home, Henry Kitchell Webster, author of "The Sky Man," once went to his father's house, borrowed the family highchair and started taking it home by hand. He had to wait long for his car, and when it finally came its conductor was a humorist.

"Aren't you pretty big for that chair?" that official answered.

"Yes," admitted Webster, wearily. "I grew up while waiting for the car."

As a sin-gle but sufficient example one may note the difficulty that has attended the yet futile effort to get a uniform divorce code.

The course of sutomobile legislation

The course of automobile legislation in Ohio foreshadows uniformity of state law. Until last year each community was left to regulate the operation of motor cars. That plan was superseded by the act of the last legislature which put this authority into the hands of the state. Diverse muthe hands of the state. Diverse minicipal regulations gave way to uniform state control. The same tendency carried a step further, as proposed by the American Automobile association, would bring uniformity of action by the different states.—Cleveland Plain Dealer,

The Usefulness of Spiders.

Despite the fach that the spider, next o the mouse, is most violently stimliating to feminine sensitiveness, it is ulating to feminine sensitiveness, it is an insect of a very good character. It feeds exclusively upon other freshly killed insects, and they are the kinds denounced by sanitary authorities, the house fly being its favorite quarry. His service in reducing the numbers of this pest is considerable, because the spider is always busy and he is present in countiess numbers. The reason why he is not more frequently seen is that he is retiring in his habits and shuns human society giute as much as that human society quite as much as that shuns him. He seldom bites anything but his food, and even when in selfdefense he does assert himself, the re-sult is no worse than a mosquito bite, or a bee sting. The touching story of "The Spider and the Fly" was evidentintended to invite sympathy for the y, but that was before Musica domestica had had his picture posted in the ogues' gallery of insect life.—Leslie's
